

DISPLAY UNTIL JANUARY 6

NEW
$1.99

IN TOUCH WEEKLY

fashion&beauty

THE STARS' STYLE SECRETS

Jodie Kidd draws attention to her neckline with a collar-like tier of bangles.

TONI SPELLING

HOLLY VALANCE

MAGGIE GYLLENHAAL

Q A Is there a way to make pearls more hip?

The classic look has undergone a funk-ification as Hollywood style-setters start a string of strand trends. "There are endless ways to do pearls in a sexy, modern fashion," notes celebrity stylist Danna Weiss. "Just mix and match single or multiple strands, or different colors and sizes."

A long rope of pearls is the most versatile style; look for a lengthy set of faux pearls at flea markets. "Take a long strand, wrap it around the neck a few times, and let the rest dangle," suggests Weiss. "Turn them into a belt on a simple black dress, or hang a vintage brooch or pretty pendant off the necklace."

For a simple but "way cool" look, Maggie Gyllenhaal lets a chunky strand hang down to her navel. (But be careful: If you use more than three strings at a time, you'll risk being swallowed up in pearls.)

◀ Danna Reed's single-strand signature is so '50s.

Lauren Graham puts the focus on her eyes.

Q A How can eye makeup go from day to night?

No need to rinse off—just apply new makeup straight over the day look, notes makeup artist-to-the-stars Vincent Longo. He applies a black or charcoal eyeliner along the upper lash line, then sweeps a smoky color across the lower lash line. For maximum drama, he lines the inner rim of the lower lash line with a black pencil. Finally, he dusts a shimmering nude shadow over the upper lids and then adds a few coats of mascara.

Her day look.

▶ Vincent Longo Waterproof Mascara ($16; sephora.com).

◀ Vincent Longo Trio in Orbit Dusk ($18; sephora.com).

WIN IT!

Get sultry-enough-for-nighttime eyes like

Lauren Graham's with Stila's Pewter and Kitten eye shadows. Send a postcard to: "January 6 Giveaway" c/o In Touch, 1667 Sylvan Avenue, Englewood Cliffs, N.J. 07632. (For details, see page 92.)

50
to give away!