

People

weekly

Sean Penn

Guy Ritchie

EXCLUSIVE

StyleWatch

by Steven Cojocar

behind the seams

When Burberry opened an 8,000-sq.-ft. retail space near Rodeo Drive last week, who better to have on hand at its launch party than the unofficial ambassadors of the zip code—Beverly Hills, 90210 alums

Tori Spelling, Jennie Garth and Tiffani Thiessen? Thiessen was beaming and for good reason: The just-engaged actress was flashing a nearly three-carat engagement ring, the new Lucida by Tiffany & Co. "I helped pick it out!" says Garth, who has been tapped to be matron of honor when Thiessen weds actor Richard Rucolo next year. . . .

Meanwhile, Spelling tore away from her pails to ogle Burberry's wares, eventually fixing on a luxe $450 dog carrier in the company's ubiquitous plaid, a perfect Christmas cadeau for her pug Mimi La Rue. What about a little something for Tori? "Oh no, you give to your children first," says the doting dog owner. . . .

What do Julia Roberts, George Clooney and Meg Ryan have in common? They're among the 10 celebs picked to be the first to own the new, limited-edition Tod's-Ferrari moccasin. Decorated with red stitching (the automaker's signature hue), the shoe is the brainchild of Tod's

Tod's-Ferrari mocs

just not appropriate," she says, "to put a winter turtleneck with a summer item."

shoes six months ago, but the rest of us can nab them—at $425 for leather, $2,600 for crocodile—at the end of November or get a size pair if you spring for a Ferrari. . . .

Seen: on-duty glamor girl Gwyneth Paltrow in gray sweats and cropped jean jacket, posing over The New York Times while brunching with beau Luke Wilson at a health-food cafe in Brentwood. . . . Kirsten Dunst sipping lattes during a three-hour hair extension process in L.A.'s Privé salon, where she had the faux tresses painstakingly glued to her scalp.

Tiffani Thiessen Do you have questions about star style? E-mail Steven at seams@people.com

"It's

what was she thinking?

Perhaps Chloë Sevigny wanted to get a jump on Halloween. How else to explain her pairing a Miguel Adrover turtleneck with a vintage summer dress at a Manhattan boutique opening last week? Stylist Danna Weiss found the combo unreasonably unseasonable. "It's just not appropriate," she says, "to put a winter turtleneck with a summer item." As for Sevigny's '80s perm, New York City brass expert John Sahag, suggesting that the actress was a victim of "bad advice," dismisses it as "passé."